

THINKS DAUGHERTY ANNOUNCEMENT NOT NECESSARY

Became Known Today President Considers Attorney General's Statement of Harding Candidacy for Re-election Inopportune

TWO WILL MEET AT ST. AUGUSTINE TODAY

By Associated Press.
ST. AUGUSTINE, Mar. 28.—It became known here today that President Harding did not consider necessary the recent statement of Attorney General Daugherty, predicting Harding would be a candidate for renomination and that the statement was inopportune. It is presumed that the President will discuss the subject with Daugherty who arrived here today from Miami, where he has been recuperating from a recent illness. The President and Daugherty have not met since Daugherty issued the statement and there is the keenest curiosity whether there will be further developments before President Harding's return to Washington.

Mr. Fulkerson is survived by his mother, Mrs. Hattie Fulkerson of Ewing, one sister, Mrs. D. E. Pelce of Rose Hill, and two brothers, S. H. Fulkerson, formerly of Middlesboro, now of Louisville, and R. J. Fulkerson of Ewing, besides a host of friends and other relatives. MERCHANTS DISCUSS CIVIC QUESTIONS

Quorum Not Present Yesterday—Another Meeting Called For Tomorrow Night

Though not enough members of the Merchants' Association to constitute a quorum were present at the meeting held at the Elks home at 3 o'clock yesterday, several important questions were informally discussed. A letter from the Woman's Club requesting cooperation in a clean up campaign for the city was read and the decision of all members present was to aid in the civic movement.

The condition of city streets, particularly Cumberland avenue, was discussed and plans for inaugurating a "Fill a Hole" campaign were mentioned, though no definite action was taken. Plans for making business conditions better in the city were discussed. Sam Anderson, president not being present, C. H. Talbot, vice-president, acted as leader at the informal meeting. Another meeting will be held at the Elks home at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening. A personal solicitation of every member will be made with a view to having a large attendance.

MANY "LITTLE BOYS" KILLED IN SMASH ON NINETEENTH STREET

Peedling hooch has become a highly developed science though it must be admitted that the methods used in this case were crude and would doubtless exclude the vender from membership in the bootleggers' association if there be such an organization. Yet the dispenser of illicit beverages may have been depending on the very simplicity of his act to divert suspicion. His awkwardness and the forces of gravity brought a sudden and smashing climax to his retail trade.

In broad daylight the negro is said to have been going out Nineteenth street. On his shoulder he carried a sack high bulged with fruit jars. It is supposed that when he met a prospect he opened the sack and displayed samples of his wares, giving the customer his choice of sudden death, prolonged agony or flavored canal water. Certain it is that when he attempted to shift the unwieldy burden it somehow slipped from his grasp and crashed to the sidewalk, a shapeless mass, bleeding from every pore, figuratively speaking.

Without waiting to hold an inquest over the countless number of "little boys" that had been killed the negro started running and the last reports say he is still going.

BROWN BROS. TO MOVE ON AVENUE

Popular Nineteenth Street Firm Will Occupy First Floor Weinstein Building

The Weinstein building, the home of the Miller store company here for many years, will be occupied by Brown Bros. about May 1. A complete line of men's and women's clothing, shoes, children's furnishings, dry goods and merchandise will be carried. A lease for the building was signed yesterday afternoon. The present plans of the Brown Bros. firm are to move most of the stock of the Nineteenth street store to their new location. As the lease on the building they now occupy will run for about a year longer, they will probably keep a branch store there during that time.

The partners consider the old Miller stand as a much better location than their present store and it is more than twice as large. They have literally outgrown their Nineteenth street store and have not the space to display their merchandise to good advantage. The building recently leased is now being repainted and redecorated throughout. Fixtures that are in the building will be used by the firm.

J. W. and L. P. Brown came to Middlesboro three years ago. They had previously had several years of retail clothing experience at London and at Lenoir City Tenn. By their fair dealing and the good will created between them and their customers they have built up a large business.

GIBSONS NOW AGENTS FOR THREE LEADING PHONOGRAPHS

The Gibson Bros. firm has recently taken over the stock of Edison and Columbia gramophones from Sterchi Bros. and Tennent, as well as the agency for these two lines. With the Victor agency which they have had for some time, they now have three of the leading makes of talking machines. Another music room containing ample space for records has been added to their store and a balcony over the rooms will provide space for the machines.

FRANCE'S ONLY GAME IN RUHR COLLECT DEBTS

Lauzanne, Editor of Le Matin Answers Accusations in Regard to French Relations Now With Germany

INFORMER IS INTIMATE OF PRESIDENT POINCARÉ

By Milton Bronner
PARIS, March 28.—What is France's game in the Ruhr? Her only game is to get the money Germany owes her. Nothing more; nothing less.

It was S. Lauzanne who told me so, and he ought to know. Not only is the editor-in-chief of Le Matin, one of the most influential papers in France, but he is on intimate terms with Premier Poincaré and all the men who compose the government.

"Mon cher Raymond" (Poincaré) unbosoms himself to his "cher Stéphane," so that he may know just what's what when he writes his powerful editorials.

I came to Paris to find out just what Poincaré meant to do in his critical and crucial Ruhr enterprise. French officials advised me to see Lauzanne; he would speak with full knowledge. "Fire away and make your questions just as hard as you like," said Lauzanne.

QUESTION NO. 1: It is charged by the enemies of France that, taking advantage of clauses in the Versailles treaty, she has made demands upon Germany so high she can't fulfill them and that France does not expect she will fulfill them. Is this true or false? Said Lauzanne: "The demands made upon Germany for reparations ($33,000,000,000) were not made by France alone. The figure was fixed in London in May 19, 1922, and the schedule of payment, which was then adopted by common agreement, was signed by Great Britain, Italy, Japan and Belgium as well as by France.

"Nobody said then that the schedule of payment was exaggerated and Lloyd George declared in the House of Commons that it was reasonable.

"If today the schedule of payments is found exaggerated, how can we be certain that a new schedule, reducing the original figures, will not be thought too high in 1925? And what is the schedule of payments Germany will not deem too high?"

QUESTION NO. 2: Taking advantage of Germany's failure to pay, it is charged France has marched into the Ruhr intending to stay there, either annexing the Ruhr and the Rhineland, or setting up a buffer state. Does France ever expect to leave the Ruhr?

Lauzanne replied: "France will never annex the Rhineland or the Ruhr; but France will remain in the Rhineland and the Ruhr as long as Germany will not pay what she owes to France.

"In other words, the Rhineland and Ruhr are considered by the French as a mortgage guaranteeing payment. When payments are made, the mortgage will have to be released and the bailiffs will leave the premises.

"Germany did exactly the same thing to us in 1871 and the whole world, including America, approved what Germany did. The last German soldier left French soil in September, 1873, eleven days after the last French million had been paid."

QUESTION NO. 3: The charge has been publicly printed in England that the French march into the Ruhr was at first inspired by a French syndicate of steel masters which desired a union with German coal and steel masters, in which the French would control 60 per cent of the stock. Is it true that French big business got Poincaré to march into the Ruhr?

Lauzanne replied: "Not only has the Comité des Forges not inspired the march into the Ruhr, but it was more or less against it. Precisely because the comité is in favor of a union with German steel masters, they could not be enthusiastic about a march into the Ruhr which is especially directed to destroy Germany economically and against the German coal and steel masters."

QUESTION NO. 4: Isn't this entire Ruhr campaign really an attempt to break her up into little states?

Lauzanne replied: "No more than Germany occupying 19 French departments in 1871, desired to break up France into little states. Germany wanted only to collect the money. France today wants only to get her money."

QUESTION NO. 5: The charge has also been printed in English papers that of the billion of francs voted by your parliament for reconstructing northern France, huge sums were diverted and sent to little nations for military purposes and that only recently 400 million francs were advanced to Poland for the army. Is this true?

Lauzanne replied: "The charge is untrue and ridiculous. Every cent voted by parliament for reconstructing northern France has gone to that work. The 400 million francs recently advanced to Poland—mainly for economical reconstruction and only partially for army purposes—was voted officially by the French parliament, as was the 300,000,000 million francs advanced to Austria as the French part of the international loan to that distressed country. The expense in the two cases will be recorded in the budget and the money will have to be paid by French taxpayers."

QUESTION NO. 6: What about the old charge that France is militaristic, that she has the biggest and best equipped army in the world, is planning big submarine fleet, and so far hasn't ratified the Washington naval agreement?

Lauzanne replied: "There is no country less militaristic than France. Her biggest and best equipped army in the world has no other purpose than to oblige Germany to pay" and that army costs Germany less than the small army of non-militaristic America. The expenditures for the army in 1922 were $194,498,000, whereas in America for the fiscal year 1921-1922 the cost of the army exceeded $325,000,000.

"France is not planning a big submarine fleet, but she wants to have an adequate one to protect her European coasts and the coasts of her empire in Africa. This submarine fleet is not directed against England, but against X (the unknown quality). The submarine is not an offensive weapon but a purely defensive one.

"The fact that France does not want any capital ships, but only submarines proves better than anything in the world that she has no aggressive intentions.

"If the Washington naval agreement which will certainly be ratified—but not yet been adopted by the French parliament, it is because there are some French deputies playing politics with the same skill as American seputers.

"These deputies have delayed the ratification to embarrass the Poincaré cabinet, just as some American senators prevented the ratification of the Versailles treaty to embarrass the Wilson administration.

"These deputies all belong to the Clemenceau party. It's a pity that while Clemenceau as in America, men didn't ask him why his followers were putting spokes in the wheels of the Washington treaty."

WANT ALL UNION MEN IN DISTRICT

National U. M. W. Busy in Field Trying to Effect Complete Unionization

KNOXVILLE, March 28.—United Mine Workers of America will make a determined effort to complete the unionization of District 19, consisting of the coal fields of Tennessee and Southeastern Kentucky, it was indicated here recently.

National organizers have been brought into the field and are now busy among the men, quietly effecting the organization, and the strike is expected to be called on April 1, when the annual contracts of the miners with the operators expires.

In District 19 there are between 200 and 300 mines employing approximately 18,000 miners.

Of this number about fifty mines are unionized, working under a closed shop agreement with the United Mine Workers, while about sixty-five mines operated by fifty companies are operating under an extension of the Knoxville agreement, which is an affiliation with the United Mine Workers organization, but with an open shop. All employees of these mines are said to be union men, and the check-off is the only thing they do not have that is had in regular union mines. These mines have a contract that does not expire until April 1, 1924, a year hence, and will not be affected by the strike, it is said.

All of the other mines in the district are non-union mines, and will be affected by the strike, if it is called, it was indicated.

Among the national workers who will come or are already in the district are:

Ben Williams, of Illinois; George W. Lewis, brother of John L. Lewis, international president; Frank Walters, of Jellico; Sanford Snyder, of Ohio; I. F. Reed of Pineville, Ky.; George W. Brown, of West Virginia; R. D. White, of West Virginia; J. H. Sears, of Harlan, Ky.; Orval Gassaway, of Indiana; M. Gann, of Nashville, Herbert Hall, of Illinois and J. Smith of Graysville

ROAD BOOSTERS WANT BOND ISSUE

No Delegates From Here—Meeting Yesterday Urges Submission

Road Issue to Voters

No delegates from Middlesboro attended the Good Roads meeting held in Louisville yesterday. Judge J. F. Bosworth, the appointed delegate from the Kiwanis club, was kept from going by important business here. The following account is from the Louisville Times:

"The Kentucky Good Roads Association holding its annual convention at the Seelbach went on record this afternoon as favoring a $50,000,000 road bond issue and urged that the legislature submit such a bond issue to the voters of the state at the regular election in November, 1924.

"The resolution adopted also recommended that the Kentucky road system shall at all times be under and remain in the control of a bipartisan commission to be appointed by the Governor with approval of the State Senate, to serve without compensation except for actual traveling expenses.

"One clause of the resolution provides that the Attorney General test in the courts the question as to the rights of the state to use funds derived from motor vehicle licenses in the construction of new roads.

"The resolution calls upon candidates for Governor to pledge themselves to carry out the programme outlined and to announce prior to their nomination the personnel of the commission they would appoint, if elected and if the bonds are voted.

"W. C. Montgomery Elizabethtown, was elected president of the association, succeeding Col. Robert J. McBryde of Louisville. Other officers elected were: Vice presidents, Mrs. H. G. Reynolds, Paducah; Judge L. K. Wood, Hopkinsville; Emory Dent, Bowling Green; Judge Wallace Brown, Bardonia; Arthur D. Allen, Louisville, Harvey Myers, Covington; Herbert H. Moore, Winchester, Mrs. W. H. Shanks, Stanford; Ben H. Williams, Ashland; J. W. Turner, Paintsville, and J. V. Alberts, Perryville and secretary, Eustace Williams, Louisville."

Eight-year-old Boy and Harlan Officer Victims of Fight Last Night at Gilliam Home Near Kitts, Ky.

TRouble STARTED BY OFFICER, SAID TO BE DRUNK

News was telephoned here this morning of a tragedy at Kitts, near Harlan last night in which a man and a boy were killed and another man was fatally shot. The dead are the eight-year-old son of W. H. Gilliam and Alex Lytle, and the wounded man is Claude Short. The shooting took place about 7:30 p. m. at the Gilliam home and Sheriff J. H. Blair, who was called immediately afterwards, describes it as one of the bloodiest scenes he ever saw. Gilliam, Short and Lytle were all Harlan constables.

According to Mrs. Gilliam, Lytle was at their home when Short came into the house, drunk. She, Mrs. Gilliam, ordered him out and he drew his gun. Some one, she did not remember whom, knocked the gun out of his hand, and then the shooting started. The boy was killed instantly. Lytle was shot through the abdomen, and died at the Harlan hospital about midnight.

Short is badly shot in the back and the leg. He is at the Harlan hospital. Neither Short nor Lytle had any family. Short is a brother-in-law of J. J. Gross of Harlan. The little Gilliam boy was buried in Harlan this afternoon.

Gilliam is reported not to be held for the shooting. Sheriff Blair says it was within his rights, as an officer, to shoot at Short when the latter was disturbing the peace.

By Associated Press.

The shooting occurred at the home of Gilliam when Short, said to be drunk and waving a pistol, Lytle attempted to take the pistol from Short and in the struggle it discharged killing Gilliam's son. Gilliam according to this version, shot Short four times, one bullet glancing, striking Lytle in the stomach. Lytle died fatally wounded. Gilliam was released in a few minutes. Short is probably on the charge of killing Lytle and arrested but released on bond charged with shooting Short.

A THOUGHT

The way of a fool is right in his own eyes, but he that hearkeneth unto counsel is wise.—Prov.—Prov. 12-15.

SARAH BERNHARDT

Al the world joins with France in mourning the loss of her great national heroine and the world's greatest and most honored actress, Sarah Bernhardt. Through her indomitable will she has held for years the most enviable position and her life typified her motto blazoned on her seal, "Quand meme," "in spite of everything." Her marvelous courage never forsook her, not even when death, whom she had held off so long, finally beckoned to her to come. The divine Sarah had no acquaintance with fear.

Madame Bernhardt represented to the world the very highest manifestation of French courage, "the very spirit and soul of France, with her dan-terness and beauty," as Mrs. Fiske once described her. Her interests, her work and her heart, were always first with her country. Especially was this shown in the late war when she, a woman more than seventy years old, entered into the work of entertaining and caring for soldiers with unequalled fervor and zeal.

The divine Sarah's last visit to the United States was in the winter of 1917-18 when she came in the interest of war relief. At that time it seemed impossible to our literal American audiences that a woman in her physical condition could hold them. But she came and more than conquered their doubts, and the American press teemed with her praises.

"Think of it!" said a New York critic, "more than seventy years old, a cripple and an invalid, this marvelous woman still retains the power to sway her audiences, to make them weep one minute and laugh the next, to thrill them as can no other actress on the stage."

Sarah Bernhardt believed firmly that her success, her hold on the people and her long life were due entirely to her will power. She came from a race which has tasted the delights of victory and the horrors of defeat but has never been conquered. She stood to the French people as a living symbol of their country and long and deeply will they mourn her death.

ILLITERACY IN SOUTH

While the problem of illiteracy in the United States is not what it is in many foreign and practically all Catholic countries, there are an unnecessary number of people who can neither read nor write. In the fourteen South States which are about to send delegates to Little Rock, Arkansas, for the illiteracy conference, which will be held there on April 10th and 11th, it is estimated that more than three million men and women and children over ten years of age, can not sign their names nor read a newspaper.

The conference is called in the hope of finding a method or methods more vigorously to combat this condition. New and better ways of utilizing the public schools for adult instruction, employment of special teachers, traveling libraries, lecturers who will address communities in districts difficult of access, and other means of removing this blot against the fair name of states as well as the nation will be discussed.

The question of good roads will enter into the discussion to some extent, since it is being more and more realized every day that ignorance is often due to lack of transportation facilities and that there are many adults hungry to learn and anxious to go to school who are prevented by absence of roads from being in close enough touch with educational centers.

WASTED LIVES
By Berton Braley

(Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, American ace, says that the lives lost in the World War were lost in vain.)

Not quite in vain—the seas that used to be Full of lurking death we could not see
Are clear again. And that blood-drenched expanse
Of fighting front that scared the face of France
Is growing green once more. The world is free
Of that black blight of Prussian mastery
Which threatened all that we hold good and fair.
They died who fell to save us from despair,
Not quite in vain!

Old jealousies and hates again may flare
Into a sudden fury here and there,
And diplomats may fence and disagree.
But they who fought and died so splendidly
Died, in that mighty conflict "Over There,"
Not quite in vain!

Washington Letter

By Harry Hunt

WASHINGTON, March 28—It was the day of the big wind, following the day on which Atty. Gen. Daugherty announced that President Harding would be the Republican candidate for president in 1924.

A 60-mile gale was sweeping obliquely across the Potomac, churning the water into mad waves and dashing spray high over the sea-wall along Potomac Park.

Out on Long Bridge where the gale was felt with great force a big limousine pulled into the curb. Two women and a man occupied the rear seat. The man leaned forward and looked out at tossing waters. A smile of unmistakable enjoyment spread over his lined face as the blustering wind howled through the steel trussing of the bridge and piled the waters against the abutments in mad fury. The sense of conflict and battle in the screaming gale seemed to fill some pent-up longing for action that long had gone appeased.

The impression the picture left was that nothing on earth would please Woodrow Wilson more than to test his strength again in one last desperate battle. For the man in the limousine was the former president.

We'd like to know why he chose such a day for a pleasure drive. Also what the wild waves said to him.

The telephone bell in the office of Chief William J. Burns jangled angrily. "Hello," said an irate voice as Burns picked up the receiver. "Hello. 'Sthis the Department of Justice?"

"Yes. Bureau of Investigation, Department of Justice," Burns said in his best politico-detective manner.

"You make investigations in profiteering?"

"Yes."

"Well, I've been profiteered on. I want you to investigate and see that I get justice."

"Just what is the cause?" purred Burns, reaching with his free hand for a memo pad and pencil.

"Just got breakfast out at the— restaurant on 14th street. Ordered half a dozen medium-boiled eggs and they had nerve to charge me 75 cents for 'em. Yessir. That's at $1.50 a dozen. And you can get all the strictly fresh eggs you want for 35 cents a dozen now. If that isn't profiteering, I'd like to know."

An elderly woman long employed in the interior Department rushed up to one of the guards last week and said excitedly:

"Hurry quick! There's a man in the women's rest room. Oh, my!"

The guard hurried. The intrusion of a man in the women's rooms might mean serious trouble. Already it had almost caused one case of heart failure. That was apparent.

But when the guard arrived so man was to be found. There were half a dozen girls and middle-aged clerks.

"There's no man here," the guard finally announced. "What made you think there was?"

"Why," explained the elderly clerk, "I smelled smoke—just as plain. I couldn't possibly have been mistaken. There certainly was smoke."

"Maybe it was me," spoke up a young clerk, putting the finishing touches on a powdery nose. "I just finished a cig."

Now comes the denouncement and the establishment of a precedent in the long battle for women's rights.

The case was called to the attention of the chief of the bureau. After due consideration he ruled there was nothing to prevent young women employees from smoking in the rest rooms.

NIGHT WIRE FROM JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT TO LESLIE HAMILTON

Am getting away sooner than I expected: will be with you tomorrow morning. Have been wondering all the week just how much you love me. Of course I know that I love you enough to forgive you everything and anything, but do you love me enough to do this for the lover who will soon be with you? Starting for the train this minute. Soon the rails will be saying—the miles are shortening between you, the miles are shortening between you.

TELEPHONE CONVERSATION BETWEEN SYDNEY CARTON AND JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT

"Yet this is John Prescott speaking."

"John, this is Syd. I couldn't get here before."

"Where are you telephoning from?"

"The East Side station."

"It's too bad you are not at the central station, Syd, as I'm leaving the house this minute to catch a train for Sharon."

"But John, I've got to see you before I can do that errand for you."

"Oh, tell Paula anything you want to, but above all you must get my letters."

"Do you want me to buy them from her?"

"I want you to get them, dear boy, get that; get them. Buy them or steal them, or make her give them to you, anything but get them."

"Are they as bad as all that, Jack?"

"To tell the truth, Syd, I don't know what is in them. I thought I was a very smart letter writer and just spread on a lot of guff. Surely you know that a man can make all kinds of a fool of himself when he puts a pen to paper under these circumstances. She never loved me, Syd, any more than I loved her. It was merely a game. I liked her foreign viewpoint, she always dressed well and I liked to take her out to the cafes. It was a case of her wits against mine. She always was trying to get me to propose to her. I have no doubts on that score, and I was always hanging off; she had no doubts of that either. Just get the letters, Syd, and bring them over to Sharon as soon as you can and manage, if you can, to stop that little vixen's mouth some way."

"But how shall I do it, Jack?"

"Oh, murder he if you can't do anything else. Goodbye, I've got to catch my train."

MY DEAR MISS PERIER:
I am just passing through town on my way to the marriage of our mutual friend, Jack Prescott. Would you not come down to the Little Club and dine with me this evening, as Jack has already gone to the home of his fiancée and I am feeling more than ever, a lonely old bachelor. Sincerely yours, SYDNEY CARTON.

BY RETURN MESSENGER FROM PAULA PERIER TO SYDNEY CARTON

DEAR MR. CARTON:
So lovely are the flowers, mon ami. Violets are my favorites, did you know? To dine with you I will be very glad and will follow this message tout de suite.
Avec tout les affections,
PAULA PERIER.

BY SPECIAL MESSENGER TO THE MANAGER OF THE "LITTLE CLUB"

MY DEAR SOMERS:
Could you manage to fix up an especially nice French dinner for me this evening? I want everything served as though it were straight from Ciro's in Paris. I am entertaining a young lady who is a connoisseur of French food. Make the table as secluded as possible and charge the bill to John Alden Prescott. I need not tell you that John is paying a bet which he lost to me. I want the dinner to be expensive.

Fellowship of Prayer
WEDNESDAY

Deserted By His Own
"I know not this man of whom ye speak." Mark 14:71.

Read Mark 14:66-72.

"But it is not until we come into the presence of Jesus of Nazareth, that we are able to see sin in all its terrible magnitude and malignity."

MEDITATION: To remain steadfast to the distastes of love in the face of scorn and danger demands all we have of courage and faith; but to fail here is to fail everywhere.

We do not go alone to trial.

HYMN:
O for a closer walk with God,
A calm and heavenly frame,
A light to shine upon the road
That leads me to the Lamb!

PRAYER: Almighty God, unto whom all hearts are open, all desires known, and from whom no secrets are hid; cleanse the thoughts of our Spirit, that we may perfectly love thee, and worthily magnify thy Holy name; through Christ our Lord. Amen.

A SONG OF WANDERING

Some crumpled rose-leaf mountains from forty miles away. Are luring me towards them through all the blazing day. Some crumpled rose-leaf mountains flecked here and there with blue. They call to me and beckon as elfin hands might do.

And deeper pink beyond them a double summit towers, Like Chronos grave and weary above the younger Powers. Behind me the Sahara, before—those barren crags. And with me the old hunter, illustrious in his rags.

When I am back in London, among the boardings' blaze, And pictures of bad food and salt that men are paid to praise, When, bright with lights that dim the stars, the foolish words are writ, To crumpled rose-leaf mountain my thought will fly to it. —Lord Dunsany in the London Mercury.

Make THE Backyard Pay

Lettuce is one of the first crops planted in the springtime and usually when hot weather comes the lettuce shoots to seed and no more is grown until late fall or the following spring. Lettuce is but one of the salad crops of which, as a rule, not more than a single planting is made.

In view of the desirability of having salad crops for use on the table at practically all times of the year, it would seem strange that home gardeners do not give more attention to prolonging the season for these crops.

The proposition is after all quite easy.

An early start for the spring crop of lettuce can often be made by means of a flat or seed box in a south window of the dwelling.

The plants that are to be grown in this manner can be transplanted to the hotbed, coldframe or to the open ground as soon as weather conditions ill permit.

Later seeding of lettuce in the open ground during the spring months provide a continuous supply well into the summer, and by providing a flat or cheesecloth shade over a small section of the garden, fairly good lettuce can be produced at almost any time of the summer, except in the extreme southern part of the country.

Late in the summer, plants can be started for a fall crop and by the use of a coldframe the late planted fall crop of lettuce can be carried well into the winter and entirely through the winter in the extreme south.

By this method fresh lettuce may be had from the gardens of the North Central States beginning with the middle of April and in the hotbed and continuing by special cultivation through the summer and ending with the crop in the coldframe as late as the middle of December.

To the southward lettuce can be grown in the coldframe during the winter and in the open ground up until the time the extreme hot weather begins.

Again in the autumn a crop can be grown in the open ground, the only time at which a supply is not maintained being in the hot summer months.

Very often when the leading varieties of lettuce cannot be grown the loose leaf or Grand Rapids type will give good results.

Cos lettuce or Romaine, as it is often called, will add variety and frequently does well in moderately hot weather and under conditions when head lettuce would be a failure.

Throughout the country Chinese cabbage is gaining in favor as a salad crop for home gardens and is deserving of wider attention.

Dandelion seeded in the late summer and slightly protected over winter yields a splendid crop of earl salad.

Endive is a relative of chicory and makes one of the most desirable salads for winter use. The seed of endive should be sown rather late in the summer and before the ground freezes the roots should be dug with a ball of earth adhering to them. These roots should be packed rather closely together in a cool cellar or outdoors in a coldframe.

By placing a mulch of clean straw over the crowns they will develop a cluster of tender, blanched leafstems underneath this mulch the makes a very excellent winter salad.

Two forms of cress are used, the winter cress, which may be grown in a flat box in the window during the winter or in a coldframe in the early springtime. The other type known as common cress and sometimes called pepper grass is usually grown during the early springtime by sowing the seed in drills a foot apart in the garden for mid-summer use.

By proper selection and a little attention to planting and growing the various salad crops a supply for the table can be provided practically the entire year.

One of the ways from preventing the human system from suffering digestive monotony is to provide plenty of green or leaf vegetables in the diet. Fresh green food not only serves as the broom for the stomach but supplies the human system with the mineral elements that are so essential to health.

Spinach, kale, mustard, dandelion, sour grass and other kinds of greens taste best in spring because they are more tender and fresher at that time.

Collards, kale, cabbage, brussels sprouts, kohlrabi, turnip tops and spinach are among the important fall winter and early spring green foods for the south. Cabbage, kale and spinach are the important fall, winter and spring green foods for those middle sections where the climate is moderate. Fall cabbage and spinach for and mustard for spring and early spring use are a good combination. In addition plants such as bassella, swiss chard and New Zealand spinach thrive during warm weather.

By the use of coldframes, coverings of straw or pine boughs and other means of protection, spinach and kale may be carried through the winter rather far north.

Beds on which late fall, winter and early spring kale and spinach are grown should be raised three to six inches above the surrounding surface so as to drain well. They are best located on a southern or eastern exposure to get the full benefit of the sun. A shelter of pine boughs or corn fodder along the north and west sides of the beds are a great protection against cold and wind. Plenty of fertilizer is essential where fall plantings are made for spring use.

Highly nitrogenous fertilizers should not be applied until after the cold weather or until active growth of the plants begins.

The season for greens on the table can be prolonged by canning the surplus grown during the spring and summer. Mixtures of young, tender beet tops, swiss chards, mustard and other greens may be made. In combine the mixture for canning only a small proportion of mustard or of any pungent green material should be used.

(LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R.)
THE OLD RELIABLE

From The Gulf Coast To Northern Tables.

While you are enjoying such delicacies as fresh vegetables, berries and citrus fruits, at a season when nearby gardens and fields are covered with snow and ice, do you realize how much you are indebted to the great transportation systems of the country?

The L.&N. Railroad not only carries the produce, truck, fresh fruits and vegetables, raised on the Gulf Coast, to the markets of the North and East, but it is also engaged in developing the country from whence these products come. In some sections along the Gulf Coast this agricultural development, fostered by the L.&N. has been remarkable. For instance; in Baldwin County, Alabama, near Mobile, it has been phenomenal. Fifteen years ago, not a car of anything was shipped out of the county. Last year the county produced several thousand car-loads of agricultural and horticultural commodities. These cars were loaded with Irish and sweet potatoes, cucumbers, oranges, (estimated number, 130,000 boxes,) peaches, berries, cattle, hogs, corn and hay.

Scores of other counties and parishes in the Gulf Coast territory are developing agriculturally and contributing their part to the Nation's supply of seasonable food products. Latest available figures show that during 1922, there were 2,836 car-loads of potatoes alone shipped from the Gulf Coast territory to Northern tables; and 5,100 car-loads of cucumbers, tomatoes, cabbages and other vegetables; 4,412 cars of oranges and other citrus fruits; 745 car-loads of other fruits (excluding bananas, of which there were 3,361 car-loads) were transported by this railroad. Watermelons to the extent of 6,142 car-loads were taken from Southern fields to Northern tables; and 1,054 car-loads of cattle and hogs; nearly 1,000 car-loads of peanuts and several hundred car-loads of fish and sea food complete the L.&N.'s showing in taking Southern-grown food products to Northern tables.

Many other points along the Gulf Coast are developing agriculturally. This season, the shipments from that section between Pensacola and New Orleans will be approximately, 1,200 car-loads of vegetables, 900 car-loads of Satsuma oranges, 100 to 200 car-loads of watermelons and 500,000 lbs. of pecans.

The L.&N. Railroad is aiding this development through its Industrial and Immigration Department. It is adding to the wealth of these states and communities and does so without immediate reward. But the L.&N. is a great public institution which, like the state itself, is beneficial to the public, serving in many ways besides the actual transportation of goods.

FOR CONSTIPATION

Black-Draught Recommended by an Arkansas Farmer Who Has Used It, When Needed, for 25 Years.

Halford, Ark.—Mr. G. W. Parsons, a well-known farmer on Route 1, this place, says: "I keep Black-Draught in my home all the time. It is the best all-around medicine I have ever found for the liver and for constipation. We began using it 25 or more years ago and have used it whenever needed since. I have never found any other medicine as good for constipation, and that was what I suffered with till I began using Black-Draught. Black-Draught corrected this condition, and now we use it for the liver and for indigestion—a tight and sluggish feeling after meals, for bad taste in the mouth and sour stomach.

"My wife uses it for headache and biliousness. It sets on our shelf and we don't let it get out. It has been a great help to us. I believe a great deal of sickness is caused by hurried eating and constipation, and Black-Draught, if taken right, will correct this condition."

Have You Ever Visited A Great Oil Refinery?

To the untrained eye, crude petroleum all look pretty much alike, but to the refinery expert their grades and qualities vary widely.

The process of converting this crude oil into various products is a most interesting one. Refining, distillation and filtration bring about the separation of various "fractions"—from gasoline to roofing and paving materials.

The production of a motor oil is one of the most important steps in this process; the effort being made to take out the impurities and at the same time leave in the "oiliness" or "viscosity".

Polarine MOTOR OIL

is made from the heart of choicest, selected "crudes", in one of the world's greatest refineries, and by painstaking care in every step of its manufacture, it comes to you as the perfect motor oil. Ask your dealer for a copy of the free booklet, "Making Motors Run Smoother"; it will interest you and save you money.

How many thousands will be unable to get ARCOLA this year?

IN 1921, 5,000 families who wanted ARCOLA had to go without.

This year three times as many homes are being built as in 1921. Yet because our factories are already over-taxed with orders for larger Ideal Boilers, we can make no more ARCOLAS in 1923 than we made in 1921.

This means just one thing—if you wait until next fall you will be cold next winter.

ARCOLA is our hot-water (or steam) heating plant for small homes—different from any other. It is connected with a genuine American Radiator in each room. That means warm bedrooms; breakfast in a warm dining room; protection for the children from colds and grippe; plenty of hot water for washing and bathing.

Please telephone your Heating Contractor for an estimate today. The installation can be made without disturbing the family; and in three average winters ARCOLA will pay back a large share of its cost in the fuel it saves.

The SECURITY of A Nation-wide Service

ALL the average man sees of the telephone system is the telephone instrument. But looking past this simple device he will see millions of miles of wires and cables, thousands of buildings, intricate switchboards—an immense plant, serving the people day and night.

This great investment in physical property insures a high degree of safety for the stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the major part of whose earnings come from its holdings in the Bell Telephone System, which renders a nation-wide service.

Partly because of this security, this stock has attracted more than 250,000 investors. It pays 9% and can be bought in the open market to yield approximately 7%.

Ask your banker, Or write to the Bell broker, or local Bell Telephone Securities Company, Inc., 195 Broadway, New York, office about this stock as an investment.
